

Ramadan 2026 in-store sales review

April 2026

Ramadan lifted in-store revenue by a fifth over a normal month, driven by basket size rather than footfall; evening hours and gifting bundles did the most work.

Summary

- Revenue across the store network during Ramadan ran 21% above an average month.
- Footfall rose only 6%; the rest came from a larger basket, led by gifting bundles and small appliances.
- Stores that extended evening hours captured most of the uplift.

Results by region (illustrative)

REGION	REVENUE VS NORMAL MONTH	BASKET VS NORMAL	FOOTFALL VS NORMAL
Greater Cairo	+24%	+15%	+8%
Alexandria	+22%	+14%	+7%
Delta	+18%	+13%	+4%
Upper Egypt	+14%	+11%	+3%

What worked

- Evening opening to midnight: 38% of Ramadan revenue came after 8 pm.
- Pre-packed gifting bundles at three price points.
- Instalment offers promoted at the till rather than only in advertising.

What it means for Meridian

- Retail should plan Ramadan 2027 staffing around evening hours from the start.
- The monthly revenue plan should keep the Ramadan peak; spreading it evenly understates February and March.
- Upper Egypt's smaller lift points to store location as much as season, which the site selection work already targets.
